STEM Advocate | Building Tech Solutions for Community Impact

I am Paul Ndeh, a passionate and driven tech enthusiast from Douala, Cameroon, with a strong foundation in computer science, full stack web development, and cybersecurity. My academic excellence, leadership roles, and community engagement reflect my commitment to using technology as a tool for empowerment. I've represented my school nationally, earned prestigious scholarships, and participated in transformative programs like TAIK AI Camp and CodingHQ. Through initiatives like TechRise Douala, I aim to bridge the digital divide and inspire youth to innovate and lead. I am resilient, responsible, and determined to make a lasting impact in my community and beyond.

EDUCATION

GCE Advanced Level – Science Series (S6)

GBHS Bonaberi

2024/2025

Description of course.

I studied science at the Advanced Level, focusing on Mathematics, Physics, Chemistry, Computer Science, and Further Mathematics. The course deepened my understanding of scientific concepts, problem-solving, and analytical thinking. I learned how to apply theory to real-world situations, conduct experiments, and work independently under pressure. These subjects prepared me for tech-driven fields like cybersecurity and software development and strengthened my foundation for future innovation.

Full Stack Software Engineering Course

Maxwell Technologies

2025/2026

Description of course.

This hands-on course focused on building real-world web and mobile applications using modern technologies. I learned to develop responsive websites and dynamic apps using HTML5, CSS3, JavaScript, React, Node.js, and RESTful APIs. The training emphasized practical experience, one-on-one mentorship, and working on live client projects. By the end of the program, I had built multiple market-ready websites and apps, gained exposure to team collaboration, and earned certification from a recognized tech institution.
